

I feel that the proposal to allow unlicensed FRS-type operations within the 70cm Amateur allocation is not only frivolous, but has the potential to create interference to licensed users of the 70cm band. Also, this would only benefit a small number of people. If these persons wish to use FRS-type communications in the United States, they need to buy FRS radios here. If they can afford to travel to this country, they can easily afford to buy FRS radios that are legal to use here.
